Ok so I talked to the sergeant in charge of the mental health unit housing and figured out a little more about what happened. They evaluated her for the mental health unit and Jenny said she was fine, would take her meds, and didn't need help. So they cleared her and that meant she went into general population. I just spoke with the sergeant at the mental health unit and they will transfer her there. Now that's just the jail mental health unit, which is very good but not where we want her for long. I am going to explain to Jenny today that when she is evaluated if she says she needs help that will make things very easy to get her to HCPC. If she refuses, then I need to do another mental health warrant to transfer her.

I'll be going to the jail at 3:30 pm today and will have more info then.

Please call me. Jenny is a victim and needs to be moved today to HCPC. Put her on the calendar. Send me Devon's correct email. I tried calling today and they want to connect me to the Sheriff's office. She is your witness. She is not a criminal. She has a black eye and is not stable on her meds. The Sheriff's office stated it is not their job to make sure she takes her meds. This all violates Jenny's victim rights. If someone hurts Jenny in jail. Your office will have bigger issues.

Thank you.

We are working on it now. Until Monday though we won't be able to get in touch with the proper people. We will go visit her Monday also.

Devon's email is different than the one you cc'd. If you'd like me to forward your email to her please let me know.

Thanks,
Nick
